

How a loan flows through the system

The city library of Tartu modeled its online loan service as a sequence of time frames. Each frame is a screen, a command, an event or a view built from events.

The reminder service reads the loans-due view only; it never calls the loan service directly.